

Audition webpage

Online is where you provide as much detail as you wish. Such as:

- A synopsis of the play
- Character descriptions
- A complete copy of the play for people to read
- Audition sides
- Parking and directions to the auditions
- Rehearsal and performance times

If you have auditions where people need to register for specific times, you can do this here.

If there are copyright concerns and you're unable to display the whole script in a non-downloadable or read-only format, find some other way to make copies of the script available. Don't depend on the local library because as soon as word gets out about the play, those few copies will be gone.

Most people really want to read the whole play through before coming out to audition. The more copies available, the more people feel confident, the better the turnout at auditions, and the more time you save.
